

Weight of the Wind

A suicidal man is taken on a time-traveling journey of self-discovery by God and Satan, forcing him to come to terms with his faults and enabling him to mend the wounds he's left in his tracks.

In the past, Jonas was career driven with many friends along with a supportive girlfriend named Birdie. While striving to be a poet, he made ends meet working at a restaurant and subsequently pushed everyone one he cared for away. Now alone with a head full of regret and appearing to be nowhere closer to his dream, he thinks making a deal with the Devil sounds appealing but realizes if God doesn't exist, how can he?

He continues his normal nightly routine of binge drinking and cycling through past memories, only this night he drunkenly cries out to God and trashes his house; feeling more alone than ever. The next morning he hangs himself in his backyard only to wake in his bed confused and nursing a hangover.

In the present no one recognizes him. Upon going to a local bar, the place goes silent, where he meets Satan. There he finds that one of his poems was published in a magazine and he's now a famous writer. Awestruck with his new life, he tries to call Birdie but gets an unfamiliar voice to a place called Jaybird Coffee.

It's there that he meets with Jay Mac on several occasions, who is himself in the future. He unveils the keys to having a prosperous life. Jonas tries to rekindle the relationship between him and Birdie but it appears it's too late, as she's married and her husband isn't around, or is he?

Disheartened, Jonas finds himself with a pianist who explains patience. He then visits Candor Magazine where he receives a hefty check. Bill, the publicist, tells him he must resign his contract after he belittles Sady, who feels a lot like Jonas once did. All the while in this state of limbo, he realizes he can alter the past and rewrite his future.

In the future, Jonas becomes aware of who he once was while visiting with Birdie, Jaymac and saving Sady from her suicide attempt; alternating between the past and present. Upon meeting with a painter, Jonas understands perseverance and waiting on the Lord, in which the devil reveals to him that he is actually dead. Not willing to accept this, Jonas rushes away where he is met by God who informs him of his ability to time travel and knows the plans for a prosperous future, if only he'd listen and have patience and perseverance.

Back in his backyard, the noose breaks around his neck. He runs in and writes down his account then goes to everyone he's wronged and mends the relationships. It becomes evident that he was given the opportunity to go back in time when he was a boy and give himself his account of wisdom. Growing up with the right heart and ultimately becoming "Jay Mac," eventually allowed him and Birdie to get married and open a shop called JayBird Coffee.