

Title: Innocent murders

Logline: In the mind of a killer, murder will always be the first and only option.

Genre: Horror / Drama

Theme: Love / Death / Family drama / Revenge

The creation of Innocent murders

I was playing around with the idea of writing a tv series, and I came up with these stories. It's basically different stories all displaying something different from serial killers, gruesome creatures, crimes of passion and so on. In Rapture city, sins are the bible.

Breaking down the stories

Pilot: Everlasting image

Jeanqúal is a wealthy art consultant in search of the perfect woman. Viewing women as art, Jeanqúal has had a fair share of women, but can't capture the one who'll complete his life. Encountering Jennie the perky cashier, he invites her to his house for dinner. The two enjoy a nice meal while discussing their previous relationships. After the conversation is done, Jeanqúal has plans on making her into a masterpiece.

Episode One

This is for God

The story opens with father Mathews in the confessional booth speaking with Brendan off screen. While trying to reach him with his words, his head comes clean off from a shotgun blast. Brendan, still off screen, tosses a newspaper on top of the dead body revealing father Mathews as a pedophile found not guilty for his crimes. From there, Brendan explains how he was molested by his parents until he reached the age of knowing what his parents were telling him about their sex crimes was a lie.

Episode Two

Blind, twenty-twenty vision

Steven was once a decorated officer, highly respected on the force, but now he's being interrogated by Carter for his brutal crimes. Steven has no remorse about what he's done, believing he won't serve no time. After getting sentenced to life in jail, Steven still believes he's in the clear because the people who agree with what he's done are in jail with him, but he quickly finds out it doesn't pay to assume.

Episode Three

How many wrongs make a right?

This is a story about Blake and Darrell. They're a happy couple, but Blake feels insecure when they're out in public because people still look at two men being together as abnormal.

One night while Darrell and Blake are in bed, it becomes apparent Darrell isn't ready for a full commitment, which is something Blake always brings up. After taking somewhat of a break from each other, Blake finds out some bitter truth about Darrell.

Episode Four

Decomposition

The story is shown from a first person view. We come in on Cameron's mutilated arms, while he explains his definition of love. Moving through the house explaining his story, we come to a stop at the bathroom. Inside it looks like a massacre took place, further giving us a deeper look at how crazy Cameron really is.

Episode Five

Off limits

Still not over her first love's murder, Sydney explains she'll remain single because men only see her for her body and looks. One day when her shy coworker Russell takes her out on a date, Sydney believes she can possibly get over her first love because Russell reminds her of him...so she thinks.

Episode Six

Expensive crumbs

Luke is an arrogant comic book artist who feels everything in his life has to be perfect, including his women. When Vanessa, the daughter of Quinn the owner of the company, comes to clear useless talent out, Luke slowly finds out what it means to be humbled.

Episode Seven

Mother Earth's recycled rapture

Mother Earth explains the pain she endures every waking second by the people who talk about various things, except the land they're living on, which she's trying to preserve.

Episode Eight

Only towards you

Donna is in the funeral home sitting beside her best friend Brittany's closed casket, explaining their friendship, and how she wishes she could've done something to prevent her murder.

Episode Nine

Broken heart road

Maryi can't wait to walk down the aisle with the love of her life Ceciél, but before the matrimony can commence hidden truths must be revealed in a bloody fashion.

Episode Ten

My Fam

Qúveil swears he has nothing but loyalty for his friend Braxton, but when Braxton supposedly turns up missing, Qúveil is nowhere to be found.

The conclusion

Everlasting image

We see Jeanquál sitting naked in front of an easel where he's composed a painting using the irises of the women he's killed. Throughout the rest of the room we see the dead bodies of women cemented on the walls making a mural with their eyes missing.

The conclusion

This is for God

After Brendan kills the last woman he was torturing in his basement. He informs us that he's God because he has the ability to give and take life when he sees fit.

The conclusion

Blind, twenty-twenty vision

While Steven is in the shower, he's approached by some tattooed Caucasian men, giving their thanks for the black people he killed. Steven believes he found some new friends, until the men assault him, preparing to rape him because the fact still remains Steven is a black man.

The conclusion

How many wrongs make a right?

Sabrina finds out her husband is Bi-Sexual, and Blake finds out the reason why Darrell refuses to move in with him. But what hits Darrell and Blake deep is when Sabrina informs them that Darrell has AIDS. Darrell begins texting all of the people he's slept with, informing them of the possibility they might have AIDS. When he leaves his office, he's murdered by Sabrina and Blake.

The conclusion

Decomposition

Cameron lies down on the bed next to Candice's dead body, placing a Desert eagle in his mouth, blowing his brains out. As his tale comes to an end, he explains that when the blood from his body mixes with Candice's blood, they'll reunite in the afterlife, returning to the world as the perfect couple.

The conclusion

Off limits

As Russell lies on his stomach hog-tied in the back of his Yukon missing an ear, Sydney is standing in front of him, dropping her pants and panties. Russell becomes sick when he sees the woman he was about to rape is really a man. She pulls her panties and pants back up, telling Russell he's about to be her next victim, because she's the rapist on the loose.

The conclusion

Expensive crumbs

While Luke is tied down to a chair with barbed-wire in Quinn's basement, he finds out Quinn and his daughter Vanessa are really demons in search of humans with perfect qualities to steal their souls. Before Luke can get a chance to speak, Vanessa is in her demon form, proceeding to bite his face off.

The conclusion

Mother Earth's recycled rapture

After explaining how people don't appreciate themselves, or the land they're living on. Mother Earth creates a catastrophic flood, letting the earth fill up with water until she's ready to reset.

The conclusion

Only towards you

The twist to the story is when we find out Brittany is the one actually telling the story about what her friend Donna went through. Before it goes off, Brittany is standing in front of the people in the funeral home reading a poem she wrote about her friend titled “Only towards you.”

The conclusion

Broken heart road

After Ceceil cancels the wedding on their wedding day at the altar, exposing how he knows about her other affairs, Maryi takes this to heart, killing Ceceil, and then herself.

The conclusion

My Fam

Qúveil is bloody, tied down to a chair on his last breath surrounded by Braxton and his goons. Before Braxton kills him, he makes Qúveil expose why he was spreading lies about him. What makes everyone sick, is Qúveil was telling lies so people would pay him more attention because he's jealous of Braxton's life.
