"Working Title" First Draft

By

Shawn Flanagan
INT. KITCHEN/LIVING ROOM—8:00

Open on extreme closeup of JOE. Sounds from two different T.V.’s are heard. JOE is sitting at the corner of the kitchen table, eating a microwave dinner and watching the T.V. in the other room through the doorway. He’s watching a crime show of some sort.

Behind him, in the living room part of the kitchen, is his younger/older (?) brother, MARK, watching the T.V. in the living room. He is watching a science show of some sort. He looks a bit stressed. The two teens are not communicating with each other.

A ring from a cell phone is heard. MARK quickly takes his phone out of his pocket, but hesitates to answer it. Before answering, he makes his way off the couch and starts down the hallway. JOE does not react nor notice any of this, even the ring.

MARK
(heard under both T.V.’s)
Yeah?...(noticeably angered, but trying to hold back) I found it with your stuff, don’t even give me that...Look, I told you what I’m gonna do...No, you don’t understand, you’re lucky I don’t take this even further.

At this point, JOE is up and cleaning off his plate, still watching the T.V.

MARK
(stuttering from being cut off from other person on the line)
I’m done. I’m no--I’m not negotiating this. I’m sorry (clearly rushing the other person off the phone) I’ll talk to you later.

MARK goes to end the call, hesitating again, but finally hangs up. He has made his way back into the living room at this point. JOE is finishing washing his dishes.

JOE
(still watching T.V)
Who was that?

(CONTINUED)
MARK
(hiding something)
Tim. He, ah, stole my English essay and passed it in as his own.

JOE
(still showing little interest)
Oh. (short pause) Hey, did you hear anything about someone stealing my bike a few days ago?

MARK
Stealing?

JOE
Yeah, I was looking for it yesterday an--

MARK
It wasn’t stolen, I took it yesterday cause my chain was broken.

JOE
(becoming angered)
Well, then where is it now?

MARK
I left it at Tim’s.

JOE
What?

MARK
It was raining. Sam came and picked me up.

JOE
Why didn’t you even ask me first?

The two of them are actually turned and looking at each other now.

MARK
Oh c’mon, I’ll have it back tomorrow.

JOE
You do this all the time. You can’t just take my stuff. I paid for that.

(continued)
MARK
Relax. I pay for stuff too and you just take it.

JOE
You buy video games and crap, I don’t take them to another neighborhood. Where exactly did you leave my bike?

MARK
(thinks for a second)
I’ll have it back tomorrow.

JOE
Are you kidding me? You don’t even know where it is?

MARK
Chill out! It’s at Tim’s.

JOE
Tim just stole your fricken essay, and now he has my bike?

MARK
Whatever! Jesus, just go back to your fricken show, I don’t have the patience right now for another one of these fights.

MARK storms down the hallway. JOE rolls his eyes and walks into the living room to turn off the T.V. MARK was watching. JOE’S phone rings, he looks at who’s calling, rolls his eyes again, and flips open the phone.

JOE
Yeah?

SAM
(on the other line)
Hey. (trying to show care, but not feeling it at all) Ah, did you eat and everything?

JOE
Yeah.

SAM
How are you guys?

(CONTINUED)
JOE
I’m fine, (indicating MARK down the hallway) Mark’s being a douche as usual.

He now begins to make his way to the Den, where his T.V. is.

INT. DEN-SAME TIME
Continuing his conversation with SAM, JOE staggers into the room and watches the T.V. during his conversation.

SAM
Whatever. Where is he?

JOE
He just stormed off into his room.

SAM
Okay, I’ll be home in like an hour. I’m just down the street, though.

He plops himself down in the couch in the Den.

JOE
(rolling his eyes yet again)
All right, bye. (clearly trying to end the conversation)

SAM
Okay, call me if you need me.

JOE
All right, bye.

Without waiting for a response, he flips his phone shut, and releases a frustrated sigh.

INT. DEN-SOME TIME LATER

JOE awakes slowly from a dead sleep. The T.V. is still on, just clearly showing a later show.

He rubs his head, showing visible pain. He reaches into his pocket and pulls out his phone, noticing the time. Confused, he gets up and stumbles out of the room and into the kitchen.
INT. KITCHEN/LIVING ROOM—SAME TIME

The kitchen counters are a mess, the couch in the living room is askew, chairs to the kitchen table are pushed around, and cabinets are opened.

Still rubbing his head and stretching out his body, he makes his way to the hallway.

JOE
Hey, Mark! (pause) Mark!

He walks down the hallway towards MARK’S room, continuing to call his name.

INT. MARK’S ROOM—SAME TIME

MARK’S room shows clear signs of distress. A lamp and clock have been knocked on to the floor, along with books, pens, and other small objects. A cabinet on the dresser is opened and dented. The closet doors are ajar and the lights are off. With the darkness, it’s hard to make anything out.

JOE is on his way in from the hallway.

JOE
Mark, what just happened? Mark?

JOE flips the switch on the wall and the lamp on the floor turns on. The light doesn’t illuminate the whole room, but caught in the light’s rays is a stain of a red substance on the carpet. JOE notices this and bends down to pick up the light. He follows a red path with the light to the desk in the opposite corner. There, covered in blood and leaning back on a chair, is MARK, illuminated by the light.

JOE screams, dropping the light and losing his balance. He stumbles out into the hallway, struggling to breathe.

INT. BATHROOM—SAME TIME

JOE pulls himself into the bathroom and gags into the sink. He finds support in his legs and stands upright. He looks in the mirror...

His shirt is covered in blood. He rips it off and runs into the other room.
INT. HALLWAY—MOMENTS LATER

JOE, with a new shirt on, has thrown himself against a wall, with his hands sifting through his hair, still trying to catch his breath.

Staying where he is, he takes his phone out and calls up SAM.

    SAM
    (after ringing for quite a while)
    (noticeably upset)
    ...hello?

    JOE
    (not attempting to contain himself at all)
    Mark’s dead!

    SAM
    (angry, but still upset)
    Joe! Joe, come on!

    JOE
    I just woke up and he was dead!

    SAM
    (pause)
    Wait, what?

    JOE
    I don’t know what happened! And there was blood on my shirt—Sam, I didn’t do this!

    SAM
    Joe, Joe, it’s okay. Just breathe. Everything is gonna be alright, I promise. I’ll call the police an-

    JOE
    (interrupting her)
    No! No, don’t call the police! I’m innocent but it looks like I did it!

    SAM
    Fine. I’ll be right there. It’s gonna be okay! I believe you. We’ll get through this, okay?

    (CONTINUED)
JOE
But, Sam!

SAM
Joe, stop! Please! I’m on my way over, I’ll be there in a few minutes. Just hang in there, okay?

JOE
(losing it)
Okay.

JOE waits a few seconds and then ends the call. He begins sobbing into his palms, loud and dramatically.

He finally gets up...

INT. MARK’S ROOM-SAME TIME

...and pulls himself into MARK’S room. He hesitates, but then reaches down and picks the light up.

As MARK’S dead body is illuminated again, JOE falls into the wall, holding back his emotions. He gathers himself and sets the light on the dresser. The room is now normally lit.

JOE finally confronts his brother’s body. We see MARK’S hand clenching on to a kitchen knife, and another knife sticking out of his chest. Blood has stained his shirt as well, and some continues to drip out from his mouth.

Blood begins to drip from the chair to the ground. JOE stares at it for a minute in deep thought. He then turns and finds a clock, noting the time to be 8:21.

In disbelief, he stands up and takes a few steps away and takes out his cell phone. He opens up his recent calls and looks at the second to last call he made. It reads: "Sammy: 16 minutes ago"

His stomach sinks and his head raises. He turns to gaze at the dripping blood and then to MARK’S body.

His only brother had to have been killed just moments before he woke up.

A phone rings.

JOE is startled, but reaches into his pocket and rips out his phone.

(CONTINUED)
JOE
Hello?

SAM
Hi, it’s me. Sorry my car wouldn’t start.

JOE
Sam, this had to have happened like less than five minutes ago.

SAM
What do you mean?

JOE
He must have been killed just a few minutes ago.

SAM
Well, yeah.

JOE
Sam, I was on the phone with you a few minutes ago! I Don’t remember any of this!

During SAM’s next like, JOE notices something on the floor and begins to kneel down to take a closer look at it.

SAM
Joe, calm down. I’m right around the corner and I’ll talk to you in a minute.

JOE picks up what he was looking at. It is a piece of paper with a shoe print on it.

Neither JOE or MARK is wearing shoes.

JOE
Sam, wait.
(pause)
Someone else was in here.

SAM
(short pause)
What?

JOE
There’s a piece of paper on the floor here with a footprint on it.

(CONTINUED)
CONTINUED:

SAM
Okay. Umm... just leave it there. I’ll take a look at it when i get there.

JOE
Okay.

SAM
Umm... how big of a foot is it?

JOE
Umm... kinda small. Why does that matter? Me and Mark both arn’t wearing shoes.

SAM
Oh. Okay. Whatever, never mind. I’ll be there in a sec.

JOE
Okay, bye.

JOE hangs up his cell and continues examining the piece of paper.

There is a bang coming from outside.

JOE jumps and looks towards the window. He waits a second and then goes towards it. Lifting up the blinds, he cautiously looks out the window. He doesn’t appear to see anything. After a pause, JOE gets up and walks out of the room.

INT. DEN-SAME TIME

JOE walks into the room and looks out some more windows. After a few seconds, he rips out his phone again.

As the phone rings, he flicks on the light to the deck outside, next to the den.

A figure is silhouetted and begins to run away.

JOE throws his phone down and bolts out through the sliding door.
EXT. BACKYARD—SAME TIME

The two figures jump off the deck and continue the chase around to the back of the house. The other figure appears to be limping. JOE launches himself at it, tackling it to the ground.

It fights back, struggles, but then rolls JOE over and punches him in the face.

The figure brings itself back to its feet, followed shortly by the disoriented JOE, and the pursuit continues.

In another desperate leap, JOE clings on to the figure's ankle, whipping it to the ground. The figure frustratingly thrusts its other foot into JOE's face and gets back to its feet.

By the time JOE gets back up to continue the chase, the figure is nowhere to be seen.

JOE continues quickly around to the front of the house in an effort to relocate the figure, but to no avail.

A quick glance to the driveway refocus's JOE’s attention. SAM had just pulled in. He goes back into the house through the front door.

INT. KITCHEN/LIVING ROOM—SAME TIME

JOE walks in through the front door and makes his way through the hallway into MARK’s room.

INT. MARK’S ROOM—SAME TIME

JOE walks into the room to SAM frozen in front of MARK’s body. JOE goes to speak, but catches himself to give SAM a moment.

After a few seconds, SAM begins to sob. JOE decides to break the silence now.

JOE
Sam, I know who did this.

SAM
What? Who?

(CONTINUED)
JOE
He was just outside, I tried chasing him but he got away.

SAM
I just pulled in less than a minute ago. I didn’t see anyone.

JOE
Well, he couldn’t have gotten far.

SAM begins focusing on something on JOE’s head. JOE becomes confused.

JOE
What?

SAM
What happened to your head?

JOE feels around his skull and finds a rather defined bump. It is beginning to swell and turn red. It is oblong rather than round.

JOE
I... I don’t know.

SAM
You were hit with something.

JOE
Yeah, what?

The two begin searching around the room for what may have hit him. JOE looks over near the dresser and closet while SAM looks near MARK’s body.

She freezes again. Her eyes are fixed on a baseball bat resting on the floor below MARK’s left hand.

JOE
Well whatever it was, it probably knocked me out and its probably why I can’t remember any of this.

This releases SAM from her trance.

SAM
Yeah probably.

JOE
So if we find that, that’s even more proof that I didn’t do this.

(CONTINUED)
SAM
You said you woke up with blood on your shirt?

JOE
Yeah, but that doesn’t mean I killed him. I don’t know how that happened.

SAM
Have you checked the rest of the house?

JOE
For what? No, I haven’t.

SAM turns and makes her way out of the room. JOE follows her, worried and confused.

INT. JOE’S ROOM—SAME TIME

SAM hurriedly walks into the room. JOE quickly follows after her. She stops in the middle of the room and looks around.

JOE
Sam, what is this about?

SAM doesn’t respond, but goes over to JOE’s desk and starts searching vigorously.

JOE
What are you looking for?

SAM
I don’t know.

Sam searches over by JOE’s bed now.

JOE
Sam, I don’t underst-

Both of them freeze as SAM reveals a bag of weed under JOE’s pillow.

JOE
(defensive and progressively becoming out of control)
That’s not mine! I honestly don’t know how that got there. What does this even have to do with anything? Sam, Sam, come on. I don’t know why that’s there but it has nothing to do with-

(CONTINUED)
Both become aware of a car pulling up in front of their house. SAM looks out the window for a closer look.

It’s a police car.

Without speaking, SAM puts the bag in her pocket and goes to leave the room.

Still, freaking out, JOE moves to see what is out front. After noticing the cop, he starts following SAM.

    JOE
    (losing it)
    Wh-How- I told you not to call the cops!

    SAM
    I didn’t.

Scene continues in the hallway.

INT. HALLWAY-SAME TIME

JOE is following SAM. SAM stops right before the living room with the front door and waits.

    JOE
    Then why are they out there? You can’t let them come in here! Sam, both of us will be arrested if a cop sees this!

    SAM
    (trying to hold back, to not make too much noise)
    Joe, shut up!

There are knocks on the front door.

    JOE
    (begging)
    Sam, at least give me time to get out!

SAM heads for the front door.

    JOE
    You can’t do this! Please!

    SAM
    Shut up and go in the other room! I will handle this.
JOE reluctantly obeys and backs back into the hallway, losing his balance and rapidly breathing uncontrollably, while SAM continues to the front door.

The sound of a door opening is made. JOE tries to calm himself.

SAM
Hello?

VOICE
Good evening, miss. I’m Officer McJames of the Plymouth Police Department. We received a call from a neighbor who claimed to have heard some... rather disturbing sounds coming from this house.

SAM
(quite shaken up)
Yes, Officer, would you mind coming inside for a moment?

At this invitation, JOE loses his footing. He is now back to freaking out again. Terrified, he pulls himself back down the hallway into MARK’s room once again.

INT. MARK’S ROOM-SAME TIME

JOE storms into the room, still on the verge of hyperventilating. He immediately makes his way to MARK. SAM’s conversation with OFFICER MCJAMES continues from the living room.

OFFICER MCJAMES
Is everything alright, miss?

SAM
Well, I just got home only moments ago. My brothers have been home all night, though.

OFFICER MCJAMES
Your neighbor claimed to have heard violent shouts and loud crashes, those sorts of sounds. (apparently noticing how beat up the house was)
What happened in here?

JOE begins searching violently around MARK’s body, looking for anything to prove he is innocent.
SAM
Well, I don’t know exactly.
(clears throat)
But, my brother, Joe, he was... he was here. And so was my brother, Mark. And, well...

OFFICER MCJAMES
What is the problem?

SAM
Mark was attacked. Joe is telling me he can’t remember any of it, but I think it was him who did it.

Upon hearing this, JOE notices the baseball bat under MARK’s arm. He begins to panic and starts searching through MARK’s pockets.

OFFICER MCJAMES
Where are the two boys now?

SAM
They are both in the other room right now. Officer, I’m really glad you came. I was beginning to get afraid of Joe.

JOE rips his hand out of MARK’s pocket with MARK’s cell phone and something else. A small green leaf. JOE freezes. The bag of weed found under his pillow was MARK’s.

OFFICER MCJAMES
What exactly is going on, miss?

SAM
I don’t know. There was a fight apparently. It looks like Joe was hit with something heavy in the head, so he might really just not remember.

JOE flings open MARK’s phone and goes to his recent calls. The last call he received came from a restricted number 26 minutes ago.

INT. KITCHEN/LIVING ROOM—SAME TIME

The conversation between SAM and OFFICER MCJAMES continues.

(CONTINUED)
OFFICER MCJAMES
Where are your parents this evening?

SAM
They are on a cruise. They’re coming back on Friday.

OFFICER MCJAMES
Okay, miss, I’m going to have to speak to both young men before I leave. I just have to make sure the dispute is settled.

SAM
Officer, that’s the thing, it’s already been... just come with me, please. I don’t know how else to... just follow me.

SAM begins to lead OFFICER MCJAMES down the hallway.

OFFICER MCJAMES
Should I be concerned right now, miss?

SAM
(losing it)
Yes.

The two continue towards MARK’s room.

INT. MARK’S ROOM—SAME TIME

SAM enters the room first.

SAM
(beginning to cry)
I didn’t know how else to-

OFFICER MCJAMES enters the room and sees MARK’s body.

OFFICER MCJAMES
Oh my g-

He reaches for his handgun. It’s too late.

VOICE
Don’t move!

SAM gasps. OFFICER MCJAMES hesitates, but then lowers his hand.

(CONTINUED)
CONTINUED:

VOICE
Walk forward!

The two take a few steps forward.

SAM turns around. It is JOE. He has a handgun pointed at the two of them. OFFICER MCJAMES also turns to face JOE.

SAM
Joe!

OFFICER MCJAMES
Where did he get that gun?

SAM
It's my dad's.

JOE
Quiet!
(he pauses)
The weed was Mark's!

OFFICER MCJAMES
What weed? Miss, you better fill me in.

SAM
I found under Joe's pillow!

JOE
I didn't take it! I didn't!

SAM
Joe, please! Please, just turn your self in! You don't remember what happened! Please!

JOE
Stop! He got a phone call—right before you called me—he was angry about something. He said it was his friend, Tim, but that call came from a restricted number. He was keeping something from me. If you find out who—

SAM
(interupting)
Joe, that doesn't mean any—

JOE
(shouting over her)

(MORE)

(CONTINUED)
JOE (cont’d)
If you find out who made that call, then you will find out who killed him!

OFFICER MCJAMES
(shouting more)
Sir, you need to lower that weapon immediately.

SAM
Joe, just do what he says! Please!
You’re only going to get yourself into more trouble!

OFFICER MCJAMES
Your sister is right! Drop the weapon! You don’t want to hurt anyone else!

Their words become too much.

JOE turns and sprints out the door and down the hallway.

SAM follows. OFFICER MCJAMES pulls his radio to his mouth and runs after him.

OFFICER MCJAMES
(into radio while running down the hall)
I need back-up. 11 Hood Drive, Plymouth. I have a homicide and an armed suspect fleeing the scene. He is dangerous and considered a threat.

INT. DEN-SAME TIME

JOE whips through the sliding door, which is still opened.
He attempts to quickly close it behind him.

SAM is stopped by the door. She opens it all the way back.

OFFICER MCJAMES is able to run right through the opening.
SAM follows after.
EXT. BACKYARD/WOODS-SAME TIME

JOE jumps off the deck, followed closely by OFFICER MCJAMES. They head towards the woods. SAM follows somewhat slowly behind the police man.

Being more agile, JOE is able to gain some distance between himself and OFFICER MCJAMES, jumping over branches and maneuvering around trees. SAM continues to linger well behind the officer.

JOE finally breaks free of the brush and reaches a strait-away in the middle of the woods and books it. Shortly after, MCJAMES emerges and follows.

JOE freezes. A large pile of dead trees lay in front of him. Upon instinct, he quickly turns about and raises his firearm.

JOE Stop!

OFFICER MCJAMES skids to a stop. SAM lingers in shortly after MCJAMES. MCJAMES also has his gun out, but keeps it pointed down. The two of them are about five feet from JOE.

JOE rapidly switches his aim between the two.

JOE
Don’t move!

OFFICER MCJAMES
Young man, you need to lower that weapon right now.

SAM
Joe, stop! What are you trying to do?

JOE
I didn’t kill him! I know I didn’t!

OFFICER MCJAMES
Young man, you are only making yourself look more guilty by doing this!

JOE
I didn’t!

SAM
Then who did? You were the only one with him for the past three hours! No one else ever went in the house—

(CONTINUED)
JOE
Stop! Stop telling me I killed my own brother! Stop!

OFFICER MCJAMES
Young ma-Joe! Joe, please, just lower your weapon and all of this can be settled!

JOE
No! Not till you two accept that I’m innocent!

SAM
Joe, you told me you woke up twenty minutes ago with blood staining your shirt!

JOE
There was someone’s shoe print! In Mark’s room! Someone else’s, not ours!

SAM
What did you do with that? I never saw it!

JOE
I left it on the floor! It has to still be there!

SAM
I looked for it! All over! It wasn’t there!

JOE
But I saw the person! He was on the deck! I chased him around back but he got away!

SAM
Joe, I pulled in right then! I didn’t see anyone else!

JOE
(extreme)
Sam, I am not lying to you!

OFFICER MCJAMES
Joe, you need calm down and drop that gun. Right now!

(CONTINUED)
JOE
I didn’t do anything!

SAM
You just don’t remember doing any of it! The bat that knocked you out was right below Mark’s hand!

JOE
How could I have killed him if he knocked me out? Huh? And why did I wake back up out in the den?

OFFICER MCJAMES
Joe, I am going to give you ten seconds to drop that gun, or you are going to force me to take action. Ten!

JOE
Why would I kill him? What reason could I possible have had to kill my own brother?

SAM
You told me on the phone before this all happened that Mark was pissing you off!

OFFICER MCJAMES
Nine!

JOE
He always pisses me off!

SAM
There’s the bag of weed, too! You even said yourself that it had to have belonged to Mark!

JOE
I would never smoke weed! Neither would Mark! It had to have been someone else’s!

OFFICER MCJAMES
Eight!

SAM
But why would it have been in his pocket?
JOE
There was the phone call he made! He was telling someone what he was planning on doing! Maybe it had to do with the weed! Maybe he found it on someone!

OFFICER MCJAMES
Seven!

JOE
Maybe that person was afraid of what he said he was going to do!

SAM
Or maybe you found the weed on him and couldn’t handle it! Maybe seeing him with it just made you crack!

JOE
No!

OFFICER MCJAMES
Six!

SAM
You just told me both of you are completely against it! Maybe seeing your brother with it made you start a fight with him!

JOE
(beginning to lose it)
No!

SAM
Maybe that fight got bad. Maybe both of you ended up fighting for your lives!

JOE
(giving in)
No! No, Sam, that can’t be!

JOE freezes. Memories are coming back into his head now. A flash back starts.
INT. MARK’S ROOM-FLASH BACK

We see Mark, standing in his room, holding the bag of weed. JOE walks in.

        JOE
        What are you doing?

The time flashes ahead. Both MARK and JOE are in defensive positions.

        JOE
        You told me you’d never touch that stuff!

The time jumps again. We are in the kitchen. JOE is thrown into the kitchen table. A pair of scissors falls to the ground. MARK is thrown into a chair.

Time flashes again. We are back in MARK’s room. MARK is holding a baseball bat. JOE is hit in the head. MARK gasps. He has been stabbed. JOE is in front of him, holding the scissors. Blood is spraying on to his shirt.

EXT. BACKYARD/WOODS-MOMENTS LATER

JOE snaps back. He is no longer breathing deeply. His entire face is sagging down. OFFICER MCJAMES’s voice fades back in.

        OFFICER MCJAMES
        Three!
        (pause)
        Two!

JOE’s arms collapse. The gun is released. His face does not change at all as MCJAMES throws him to the ground.

CUT To BLACK

FADE IN ON:

EXT. FRONT YARD/POLICE CAR-LATER

JOE is handcuffed behind his back, sitting in the back seat of MCJAMES’S cruiser. He is leaning forward, still unconscious. The back door is left open. MCJAMES is talking on his radio as JOE regains consciousness.

        OFFICER MCJAMES
        I have the fleeing suspect apprehended and the situation seems (MORE)

(CONTINUED)
OFFICER MCJAMES (cont’d) calm now. I haven’t been able to examine the scene too well yet but it looks like this kid did it...

JOE looks around and realizes it’s all real. He tries to move his hands, but the handcuffs prevent it. He struggles desperately to break free of them, but obviously to no avail.

An object falls from his pocket. It’s MARK’S phone. His words come into his mind.

MARK
(disembodied)
I found it with your stuff, don’t even give me that... Look, I told you what I’m gonna do...

JOE slips into another flashback. We are back in MARK’S room, the same scene from the previous flashback.

MARK
Look, Joe, this isn’t what this looks like. This was supposed to be settled between the two of us, you weren’t supposed to be involved.

JOE snaps back. His head rises. His breath slows. Then the visions start again.

A third figure becomes apparent in the room. MARK and JOE continue.

JOE
You told me you’d never touch that stuff!

MARK
Joe, please! This isn’t mine!

The figure speaks, but its voice is unrecognizably distorted.

FIGURE
Mark, just give it back!

MARK
I told you what I was going to do!
That is final!

(CONTINUED)
JOE
(to the figure)
Wait, this is your’s?

The black and red sweatshirt on the figure becomes noticeable.

JOE snaps back again. His mind is clearly at work.

We are back in a flash back. This time we are later on. JOE is in the den turning on the deck light. The same person, with the same sweatshirt is illuminated, standing on the deck.

He snaps back again. He brightens up, but his breathing quickens.

He goes back in a flash back. He is chasing the figure around the back of the house. It is clearly limping.

Now we are back in MARK’s room. The figure swings a knife at JOE. JOE counters with a baseball bat, low and hard to the knees.

JOE snaps back out. He’s now completely back in the police car.

OFFICER MCJAMES’s voice fades in.

OFFICER MCJAMES
...can call the back-up off for now. But we definitely still need a forensic or CSI unit down here.

JOE looks around. MCJAMES is the only person nearby.

JOE (hesitantly)
Officer? Excuse me, can I-

OFFICER MCJAMES
(over radio)
One minute, he’s regained consciousness.
(to JOE)
I guess now is when I should read you your rights.

JOE
No! Officer, I really think there was some-

(CONTINUED)
OFFICER MCJAMES
(interrupting)
You have the right to remain silent. Anything you say can and will be used against you in a court of law. You have the right to speak to an attorney. If you cannot afford an attorney, one will be appointed to you.

JOE
(overlapping)
No! No, no, Officer will you please just listen to me!

OFFICER MCJAMES
(louder)
Do you understand these rights as they have been read to you?

SAM begins walking in down the driveway, noticed by JOE.

JOE
Officer, I really think there was another per-

OFFICER MCJAMES
(firmly reiterating)
Do you understand these rights as they have been read to you?

Something catches JOE’s eye coming from up the driveway. SAM against the retaining wall, clutching her knee in pain.

JOE freezes, staring at her.

INT. DEN-EARLIER

JOE is casually sitting on the couch, continuing to watch COPS. On the show, a man is being thrown forced into a police car, handcuffed, and claiming he is innocent.

Suddenly, a shout of some girl is heard from the other side of the house.

VOICE
Mark, please! I know what I’m doing!

JOE is confused and gets up to check it out.
INT. MARK’S ROOM-SAME TIME

JOE walks into the room. MARK is sitting in his chair. A girl with a black and red sweatshirt is standing near the window.

It’s SAM.

JOE
(shocked from seeing her)
What are you doing?

MARK gets visibly frustrated. JOE notices the bag of weed in his hand.

JOE
What the hell is that?

MARK
Look, Joe, this isn’t what this looks like. This was supposed to be settled between the two of us, you weren’t supposed to be involved.

JOE
You told me you’d never touch that stuff!

MARK
Joe, please! This isn’t mine!

SAM finally speaks, noticeably upset and stressed.

SAM
Mark, just give it back!

MARK
I told you what I was going to do! That is final!

JOE
(to the figure)
Wait, this is your’s?

SAM
Mark! Really! You don’t understand! I need that back!

JOE and MARK look at each other.

JOE
Is this what that phone call was really about?
MARK
Yeah. I was going to show give it to mom and dad so they can get her some help.
(pause)
But, if-

JOE
But what?

MARK
Look, if she’s in trouble we need to give it back to her!

JOE
Are you kidding?

MARK shifts back and forth between SAM and MARK.

SAM
Oh my god! Just give it to me!

SAM lunges at MARK. He attempts to fend her off, but she persists. JOE goes to assist MARK.

They all fight for the bag. SAM grabs hold of it and MAKES off down the hallway.

INT. KITCHEN/LIVING ROOM-SAME TIME

JOE catches up to SAM, blocking her from the front door.

JOE
Sam, stop!

She turns and books it through the kitchen for the back door. JOE lunges at her, but she turns and counters. JOE is thrown into the kitchen table.

MARK enters and goes for the SAM. She deflects him on to the counter top, but not before he was able to take the bag. The figure kicks MARK into a chair.

SAM picks up the pair of scissors. JOE and MARK look at each other.

MARK
Sam, what are you doing?

The three pause. MARK, with the bag of weed, books it back down the hallway. SAM follows with the scissors.
INT. MARK’S ROOM-SAME TIME

MARK runs in and grabs his baseball bat on the floor. He turns and swings low towards SAM, who is rushing in behind him. She dodges and thrusts her arm into his stomach.

He coughs. JOE enters. MARK has been stabbed.

SAM pulls the scissors out, hesitates, and launches them back in his chest.

MARK coughs up blood and falls into his chair. SAM backs away. JOE rushes over to MARK. JOE holds the scissors and eases MARK into the chair. JOE can’t get himself to react at all. MARK dies as JOE holds him.

JOE remains there. Frozen.

Suddenly he is pushed away by SAM. Before she can make another move, JOE has the baseball bat and whips it into her legs. She falls, but recovers and tackles JOE into the bed.

As JOE lifts his head, the bat is already being swung. It hits his head and he is thrown off the bed to the ground. He struggles for a second, but gives up and lays there.

SAM remains in the room, just standing there. She then moves and picks JOE up and drags him out of the room.

EXT. FRONT YARD/POLICE CAR-MOMENTS LATER

JOE is back, still staring at SAM. SAM notices, then realizes what she is doing. She returns the stare and begins to back away.

OFFICER MCJAMES
I said, do you understand these rights as they have been read to you?

JOE looks up at the officer, then back at SAM. She turns and begins to hurry back into the house.

JOE
Yeah, I do.

He kicks the door into MCJAMES and sprints out of the car after SAM.

OFFICER MCJAMES
Hey!
INT. KITCHEN/LIVING ROOM—SAME TIME

SAM limps through the front door, followed shortly by JOE, who shuts the door behind him quickly and locks it, still with his hands cuffed behind his back. SAM rushes down the hallway.

JOE gets to the ground and starts shimmieing his arms from around his back over his legs. MCJAMES gets to the door and begins pounding on it furiously.

JOE gets his arms around and sprints after SAM down the hallway.

INT. PARENT’S ROOM—SAME TIME

SAM is making her way out of a window as JOE runs in.

He tries to make it to her but she manages to escape. He quickly follows her through the window and out on to the bulk head doors.

EXT. BACKYARD—SAME TIME

SAM limps desperately for the woods as fast as she can. JOE hurries behind her. She is tackled to the ground before she makes it.

JOE rolls her on her back. JOE stares at her. He can’t find any words.

   SAM
   I knew it wouldn’t take long for you to remember it all.

JOE continues his stare.

   SAM
   But, I’m glad you did, cause you know what the cop has to do when he finds us now, right?

JOE sits up. Something illuminates him from behind. There’s a loud report. JOE is jerked forward.

Another. Followed by two more. He falls to the side of SAM, staring her in the eyes.

MCJAMES rushes over.

(CONTINUED)
OFFICER MCJAMES
Are you alright, miss?

SAM turns to JOE, who’s eyes remain fixed on her.

SAM
Yeah, Officer. I’m alright. Just a bit shaken up.

MCJAMES helps her to her feet. Blood begins to pour out of JOE’s mouth. He remains there, frozen.

CUT TO BLACK

ROLL CREDITS